May 6–8
Fri.–Sun. AISC
37th Annual Pow Wow
Contest Dancing, Drum Contest, Gourd Dancing, Ms. UCLA Crowning on Saturday, May 7th
Location: Wallis Annenberg Stadium @ UCLA
Free admission and open to the public.
Website: https://aisc.it.ucla.edu/w/events/ucla-37th-annual-pow-wow/

May 9
Mon. AASC
You Have Not Yet Been Defeated: Selected Works 2011-2021 by Alaa Abd el-Fattah
Book Talk with Sharif Abdel Kouddous, Sanaa Seif, and Robin D.G. Kelley
"You Have Not Yet Been Defeated" contains powerful ideas of protest and freedom of expression from Alaa Abd el-Fattah, the world-renowned Egyptian political prisoner and activist collected in English for the first time.
Location: 10383 Bunche Hall
Registration: https://www.international.ucla.edu/enes/event/15627

May 6, 13, 20, 27
12–1 PM AASC
“Contemporary Asian American Activism: Building Movements for Liberation”
Registration: https://www.aasc.ucla.edu/events/activismseries/

May 26
Thurs. AASC
Saving the Silversword: Native Species & Colonialism in Hawai’i
Welcome to the UCLA Mathias Botanical Garden’s 2021-2022 public lecture series, Transplanted: Examining Contexts of Plants, People, & Place. Join Dr. Ashanti Shih to learn about the story of the silversword plant and its relationships to conservation, gender, race, and colonialism.
Location: UCLA La Kretz Garden Pavilion